Legal Battle over Local Title Threatened.

J. H. Stuart of South Paris claims to own the Geo. A. Cole boathouses on the northerly side of the Upper mill Privilege. He bases his claim on a quit claim deed got from the Norway and Paris street Railway in settlement with Stuart for the Evans heirs' land at Buck's Dam.

It is said that in making a survey and map of the N. & P's land and flowage rights, Mr. Stuart found that the title of Buck's Dam belonged to the heirs of the late Richard Evans. This title Mr. Stuart quietly obtained and in selling it to the Street Railway Co. exacted of them $700.00 in cash and a quit claim of whatever interest the company had to a strip of land on the northerly shore of the mill pond. This includes land on which are the boathouses of the late Geo. A. Cole, also a shore front of land supposed to be owned by Don C. Seitz of New York, which went with his Ordway Grove purchase.

How valuable this strip of land may be to Mr. Stuart is unknown, but it is certain his claimed right of ownership will be contested in the courts.

His title from the Evans heirs was valuable to the N. & P. Street Railway people as it conveyed to him the right of drawing four feet of water from the lake which they supposed they owned and the company compromised with him as stated above.

Alton C. Wheeler of South Paris is retained as attorney for Mr. Stuart and has recently been making investigations, looking for a settlement with the parties or legal proceeding to take possession of the property will commence.

H. B. Foster, agent for the Cole interest and Don C. Seitz have notified Mr. Stuart's attorney to go ahead.

A long drawn legal battle over title of the strip of land is likely to follow.

Queen Mary of England Writes to Mrs. Alma P. Hayden.

A letter of thanks from Queen Mary of England, has been received by Mrs. Alma Pendexter Hayden, superintendent of the Industrial school in Rochester, N. Y. Mrs. Hayden wrote a poem dedicated to the Canadian soldiers at the time the first Canadian contingent left for England last September, and was printed in the Advertiser at that time. The letter was written on the official Windsor Castle paper by order of Queen Mary, and reads:

"'Windsor Castle, September 11, 1915

"The private secretary is commanded by the Queen to thank Mrs. Alma Pendexter Hayden for the copy of 'The Soldier's Parting Hymn,' which she has been good enough to send for her Majesty's acceptance."

The occasion for the poem was when the Thirty-fourth battery, Canadian Field artillery, was leaving Belleville for the front. The band played the music of the hymn, "Abide With Me," the crowd at the station being deeply affected. The circumstance was reported to Mrs. Hayden and she composed the poem given below:

"Abide with me, fast falls the even-tide."
Keep safe my loved ones, be their strength and guide;
If never more my own dear land I see,
"O Thou Who changest not, abide with me!"

One life I have to give—it is my all
And God be with me if I live or fall;
"When other helpers fail and comforts flee."
In stranger lands, "O Lord, abide with me."

"Swift to its close, ebbs out life's little day."
Dear hearts, forget me not when far away—
Upon the battlefield, upon the sea,
Whate'er my fate, "O Lord, abide with me!"

So breathed the said strains of the parting
hymn,
Farewells were said and eyes with tears grew dim—
"Abide with me"—a prayer it semed to be,
"In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me!"

Mrs. Laurestine L. Denison.

Mrs. Laurestine L. Denison, 90 years old, died at her home in Mehanic Falls, September 26. She had lived in that town nearly forty years going there from Norway. Her husband, Isaac A. Denison, died four years ago at the age of 91 years.

On account of weaknesses incidental to old age, Mrs. Denison had been confined to the house for the last few years, but she always retained her interest in friends, neighbors and the outside world.

She had a bright keen mind which enabled her easily to take the lead in Bible study in the Sunday school in which she belonged and she was greatly missed after she was obliged to give up constant attendance at the church services.

Mock Court Trial.

The Mock Court Trial over which the people of the village have had a great interest in, was held Wednesday evening at the Opera house before a good sized house. The reason for the excitement in the case which was a breach of promise, where two well known people of Norway were implicated. The plaintiff in the case was Miss H. M. Taylor, know as Jerusha Rugg Perkins, and she brought suit against Chester P. Gates, because he had failed to keep his promise to marry her. From her own testimony she was desperately in love with Chester and he with her. Jerusha appeared as a charming widow attired in pale green silk with lace trimmings with a large pink and white hat and with tears and grief told of all the heart aches that her unfaithful suitor had caused her until the entire court was steeped in tears.

Mr. Gates presented his case and denied that he ever loved her but proved he did love her niece, Jerusha Ray Perkins who lived with her, and in order to see her had to make love to the aunt one night and the niece the next. In sending the niece letters, he gave them to Everett Bicknell to put in the sugar he delivered at the Perkins boarding so she would get them, but the aunt happened to open the sugar. The niece, Mrs. Effie Akers, who appeared as a girl of about 16 told of her love for Chester and how the aunt had miss used her and how she tried to get a man to love her. The other witnesses in the case were Dr. L. Hall Trufant, who proved the widow was a maniac on the matrimonial sea; Arthur H. Morgan, who proved she tried to make love to him at her boarding house, but he just escaped; Dr. C. L. Buck, proved the widow was sadly wronged by Chester, that he had seen things that convinced him, they were very fond of each other and Mrs. Urshal Gammon tried to prove the widow was a pretty bad woman, she cheated her boarders by putting red flannel in the hash and she finally told of leaving her owing a big board bill and she herself had been in love with Chester, but didn't know which side she was witnessing on.

The court was made up of C. F. Whitman as judge; Stuart W. Goodwin, clerk; Harry M. Shaw of the University of Maine Law School, Chester Gates' attorney; Col. A. V. Newton of Worcester, Mass., Court Officer; Sheriff W. O. Frothingham; Court Crier, William A. Bicknell. The jury was composed of F. L. Cook, Z. L. Merchant, James Tubbs, Bert Hamilton, O. L. Stone, Harry Luck, James Pledge, E. B. Jackson, C. H. Mosher, Cleve Goodwin, Harold Anderson, O. W. Edgecomb, who answered to names such as J. P. Morgan, J. D. Rockefellow, Wm. Taft, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, etc.

The case went before the Jury and in a short time the verdict was returned for the plaintiff at $3.48, three dollars for the jury and 48 cents for the judge.

The trial proved very interesting and caused much merriment with the application of local parties names in affairs, especially when the widow denied ever having a breach of promise case against any of the local bachelors or widowers excepting one, that being Mr. Seavey.

A VISIT TO FARMINGTON FAIR.

Mother and I went to the Farmington Fair last Wednesday. It was a cold and windy day. We left South Paris at 9:07 a. m. and arrived on the show grounds at 11.45 a. m., 49.3 miles, north east via: Streaked Mountain, Buckfield, Bretton's Mills, North Livermore, Livermore Falls, Jay and the two Wiltons.

Frank B. Fogg drove the car, a Hudson 6-40 except where the road was too winding for him to easily follow and he turned the car over to Mother, who steered it through the Rabbit road leading into Bretton's Mill. This is a corkscrew trail of a couple miles or so. If you ever pilotted a gasoline chariot over and through it you can appreciate its educational value to a budding Barney Oldsfield. That's Mother! You should have seen her!

A halo of literary glory and automobiles enveloped Farmington last Wednesday. It was generously mixed with wind and art work. A Farris wheel, a deep-dip, trotting horses and drawing oxen and a multitude of sight-seers. I was one of them.

The Cattle Fair Grounds are good. They are larger than the ones between Norway and South Paris, but not kept up in so good a shape and not so conveniently arranged. They sell single pasteboard tickets at a low wire-barricaded window, where the window should be high and protected from the north west gale and all tickets should come from a roll and be numbered. There you could easily tell how many tickets were sold and keep tab on the income from this source and make an intelligent estimate of the number of people on the grounds when asked by a newspaper reporter. It is the correct way.

Gates across the tracks at the south east end of the Grand Stand are needed. Entrances to the stand should be had at both ends, instead of at one end. Too much crowding of people and too slow with only one entrance and exit. In it there lurks a danger. It should be remedied.

They have good buildings and an exceptionally fine barn, running water, horse stalls, sheds, a grand stand for seeing strong animals and wrestlig matches, etc. Nearly all the buildings need painting and in some places the fence should be repaired.

The price of admission is too low, 25 cents. Too big and expensive a show is given for that admission. It should be 35 cents at least. It is worth it when the north west wind will allow the balloon to ascend. It was here to use but the gale would not permit it. Probably Thursday it went up.

I don't like to do two things at once: watch a horse and an interesting vaudeville show at the same time. I don't enjoy it, maybe others do. This was the manner of entertaining Wednesday afternoon. Special attractions before the Grand Stand should be announced, so those who pay their dimes to see, may know about it and appreciate it. This was not done. It should be in the future. When the water ceases to run in the ladies' toilet, the races should not be delayed while the track-marshall finds some one to make the needed repairs. No, no, never!

This is great kicking isn't it? One more: The score man didn't do his full duty. He didn't sell half the cards and pencils the crowd wanted. I itched to get into the business. It was so wretchedly handled I did not enjoy the first hour of the races. A golden opportunity to supply a want and make money, lost. I offered to help the young man and sell cards for him but of course he wouldn't let me as he didn't know me from a Down River Robber and my only certificate of good character was my face and a paid up certificate for 1915 dues to Kora Temple of Lewiston.

I met W. J. Wheeler of South Paris, president of the Oxford County Agricultural Society and enjoyed the races with him, basking in the sunshine in front of the Judges stand and walking down the track when the race was on to see Billy Nelson come in second and the expected man come first. The racing was good. Only one string-bean heat did I see and that was amusing as the driver of the leading horse kept looking around to see if the procession was coming and slowing down to save the flag for the last one.

I was invited to lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wheeler of South Paris. I was greatly tempted to do so as I liked to set in his six thousand dollar car just to see how it would have seemed. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Wright.

E. E. Flood, son of David Flood, who made over the cheese factory into a comfortable residence at Norway Lake, is one of "the heavy" men in Farmington. He has been there 17 years buying and selling shoes and on the side dealing in wood and timber lands and various kinds of automobiles. He is now handling the Overland and his partner was showing them under a tent. One was horsed up and running all the time and its hidden parts exposed to the public gaze.

While intently gazing and admiring the fine needle-work and crochet patterns in a top story of some building I was run down by Frank L. Harlow, the N. W. Insurance man of Gorham, Me., and adjoining counties. He inveigled me to look at some other stuff in an out of the way corner and will you believe it he didn't know a bell-tounge from a clevis pin, but out under a tent he showed and told me all about a wrestling match. There stripped giants who acted funny in catching one another and laying down for the amusement of those who had paid ten cents for admission. Harlow was enthusiastic and boosted me up over the heads of the spectators so I could get a good look at them. The big man who fell underneath said he had $50.00 to bet against $25.00 that he could down him three times out of five. I came out failing to see where the fun came in.

Arthur Tucker is some man in Farmington. He has a garage, a water company and a corn canning factory to manage besides an interesting family of children. He is a son of Benj. Tucker of Norway, a big breeder of fine Holstein stock.

I have much more to write of but the time is up and I must stop.

I will add Mr. Fogg and Mrs. Kimball, Mother and I passed through the gate of this classic enclosure at Farmington at 4:30 p. m., followed and preceeded by several hundred autos and about as many teams who were all trying to get there first regardless of the dust and arrived home at 7 p. m. and took supper at Bob Seavey's Tavern.

KNOW IT WELL

Familiar Features Well Known To Hundreds of Norway Citizens.

A familiar burden in many a home,

The burden of a "bad back."

A lame, a weak or an aching back

Often tells you of kidney ills.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Here is good testimony to prove it.

L. E. Monk, mechanic, Pleasant St., South Paris, Me., says: "I suffered nearly every day from a lame back. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I knew that my kidneys needed attention. Someone told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box. They did me a great deal of good and two or three boxes made me well."

Three years later, Mr. Monk said: "My kidneys have remained sound and healthy since I used Doan's Kidney Pills."

IN THE "BIG WOODS."

We sit by the camp in the twilight, as the shadows begin to fall,
And the fitful flaree of the campfire is dancing on the wall;
Out through the trees on the water, where the sunlight lingers still,
A fisher is rowing homeward and bends to his oars with a will.
We have eaten our fill of supper, of bacon, corncake and trout,
And smoking our pipes in silence, we lie and lounge about.
And Bill, he is thinking of Mary, the girl with the golden curls;
And Charlie is thinking of Angie, to him the brightest of girls;
And Harry of laughing Amelia, so graceful, pretty and tall;
But I—I am thinking of no one; I haven't a girl at all.

Bill owns a house in the country, with hens, a horse and cows;
With things to eat in the cellar, and plenty of hay in the mows.
And Charlie is a millhand; ten hours he works each day,
And he and Angie are happy, though he doesn't draw much for pay.
And Harry thinks of the city, where Amelia lives in a flat;
A canary bird in the window, and under the stove a cat.
And here in the heart of the "big woods" we have come together again—
Hunting and fishing and loafing—happy and carefree men;
I hear the plaint of the whippoorwill, I hear the nighthawk's call—
My heart is in the wildwoods, for I haven't a girl at all.

A couple of birds by our campfire have sung and watched each day;
They seem so true and devoted, each in a birdlike way;
Yesterday I saw a squirrel a-chattering to his mate;
Last night a night-owl was scolded because he stayed out late.
And the whippoorwill is calling, and its mate's reply is heard,
I listen quite intently, with a heart that's strangely stirred;
And this very day my rifle brought crashing to earth a buck—
A deer, strong-limbed and handsome, and I thought myself in luck;
But a doe, wild-eyed, grief-stricken, had leaped when she saw him fall;
And my heart ached, my heart ached, though I haven't a girl at all.

SUMMER'S FAREWELL.

Summer is on the wing, nor stays
To linger long upon the way,
But casts one last and wistful look
Before the close of her bright day.

And like some long departed one
Returning home once more,
Still grieves though smiles because he knows
He soon must leave for some far shore.—

So summer in her beauty everywhere—
In all her richest dyes,
Sheds tears because her glory wanes,
And fades her sunset skies.

The plants have reached their perfect state,
Matured the fruit on bush and tree,
And waiting grains on every hand,
Proclaim to us what is to be.

And the wee birdlings in the nest,
Have learned to use their wings and fly,
And crickets' chirp and bee's low drone
All tell us summer's passing by.

For now the days decline, and eve
Approaches with a chilling air,
And flowers that bloomed but yester morn
Hint that some blight is lurking there.

And, as the mariner leaving home
Gives one wistful glance as he quits the bay,
So Summer ling'ring, gives a parting smile,
Waves her bright plumes and glides away.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PRIZE NUMERICAL ENIGMA.

The answer contains 31 letters, and is a proverbial saying:

4, 16, 2, 13, is a matron.
5, 30, 21, 23, is to plaster.
6, 11, 9, is chance or fortune.
12, 24, 22, 20, is to bruise.
15, 8, 17, 7, is to create.
19, 11, 3, 28, is an acid.
26, 29, 25, 18, is completed.
27, 10, 1, 31, is imposture.

Send the answer before October 20th, to Ruthven, Box 35, West Bethel, Maine and the first, fifth and tenth correct solvers will each receive five pretty post cards.

The answer to the September enigma is "Only a woman knows a woman's need." Only two sent the answer, the first being Effie F. Peverly of Bryant's Pond and the second E. W. Edwards of Oyford.

The enigmas I have given you to solve during the vacation and fair season have been short and easy to work out and the prizes offered have been worth an effort to win, yet only a few have sent answers. Are the readers losing their former interest in puzzles, or do they want harder knots to untie? A longer and more difficult enigma is in preparation for November and a different class of prizes will be offered, but in the meantime I hope not less than ten will solve the enigma now before you.

RUTHVEN.

OXFORD

Reception to Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Lord.

A surprise party was given Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Lord of Oxford, Saturday evening when about fifty of their friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jordan at Lisbon Center. Mr. and Mrs. Lord had been spending the week-end as the guests of Iola B. Wilkins. Mr. and Mrs. Lord were invited to spend the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Jordan. They were ushered into the two large parlors, in which all the guests had previously been seated and the rooms had been darkened. Suddenly the lights were turned on and Mr. and Mrs. Lord's surprise was complete.

Mrs. Lord, formerly Mildred N. Mayall, was for several years postmistress at the Lisbon Center post office. F. W. Lord is a prominent business man in Oxford. He was postmaster there for several years, giving up that position last summer, and is now conducting a grocery business there. A few weeks ago they went to Lisbon Falls and were married. Since then they have been making their home in Oxford.

After the greetings had been completed Mr. and Mrs. Lord were presented, in behalf of their many friends in Lisbon Center and vicinity with a beautiful cut glass water pitcher, with glasses to match. The presentation was made by Mrs. Elizabeth G. Ricker. An original poem was written for the occasion and read by Iola B. Wilkins.

Fruit and candies were served. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing, card playing, and a general good time.

KNOW PAINT

There's a paint-education in this advertisement.

Buy by the job, not gallon. Buy by the paint put-on; that's the job.

The price of paint is so much a gallon; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

The price of painting is so much a day; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

Put them together. How can you do it? You've got to or lose perhaps half of your money.

Devoe, 10 gallons enough for the average job; an average paint, 15. Now reckon your costs. Count labor a day for a gallon. Devoe 10 days; the other 15.

Devoe about $50; the average paint about $70 or $80; the dearer the labor the bigger the difference, always that way.

But that's for the job. How long is it going to last? One twice as long as the other.

Glenwood Coal Ranges, Gas Ranges, Furnaces and Heaters, awarded Two Gold Medals, at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Cal., 1915.

Glenwood Ranges are the product of New England's largest and best known foundry. They are designed by makers of life-long experience. They weigh more, are put together better and burn less fuel than most ranges. The castings are wonderfully smooth and easy to keep clean.

They are handsome, convenient and mechanically right—no modern feature lacking. Smooth cast, Colonial design, plain finish, compact structure, big roomy ovens, easy working grates and countless other features.

Owing to their sturdy construction and fine workmanship, they will stand hard usage, do better work and last much longer than the ordinary kind.

They certainly do "Make Cooking and Baking Easy".

Get one and make housekeeping drudgeless.

When You Want a Thing Done RIGHT, Do It YOURSELF

Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

Just now, when the attention of educational folk is centered upon the enrollment in the colleges, it is interesting to note whither the Hebron graduates of 1915 have betaken themselves. A survey of the records in the registrar's office reveals the fact that 57 per cent. of last year's graduating class enter this fall some higher institution of learning. Of the 63 members of the class, 36 are to pursue advanced courses of study.

Seven boys enter Bowdoin this year. They are Fred B. Chadbourne of Waterford, salutatorian of the class; Jacob B. Ham of Lewiston; Harlow B. Mosher of Dexter; Durrell L. Noyes of Winter Harbor; Charles Pendleton of Dark Harbor; Harold B. Sawyer of Farmington; Lloyd R. Pendleton of Dark Harbor.

The University of Maine also welcomes seven boys and one young lady of the class: Charles B. Clark of North New Portland, manager of last season's splendid track team; Anita M. Davis of Warren; Charles E. Foss of Woodfords; Clyde T. Holden of Sabatus; Foster D. Jameson of Friendship; Arthur N. Lawrence of North Lubec; Cecil C. Sweatt of Andover; Merle M. Weymouth of Howland.

Four young men have elected Dartmouth as their prospective alma mater: Walter W. Cross of Milton, Mass., last year's captain of base ball; William M. Damm of Swanville, valedictorian of the class; Arthur B. Eastman of Berlin, N. H.; Philip B. Frothingham of Portland.

To Colby go Robert T. Carey of Islesboro; Austin W. Maldocks of Owls Head; Abbott L. McKenney of Clinton.

Bates gets two Hebron men this fall, Maurice L. Small and Reginald M. Schafer, both of Lewiston.

The remaining members of the class who continue their education are distributed as follows: Dorothy M. Hutchinson of Auburn and Dorothy E. Parsons of Rye Center, N. H., enter Middlebury college. Chester H. Wiggin of Whitefield, N. H., goes to Boston University; Mary M. Martin of Colebrook, N. H., to Wellesley; Fred W. Ruble of Malden, Mass., to Amhurst; J. Warren Sanborn of Amesbury, Mass., to Tufts Dental college; Charles H. Hodgkins, Jr., of Lamoine to University of Pennsylvania Dental college; Bertha R. Curtis of Barranquilla, Columbia, S. A., to Simmons; Louise Bisbee of Rumford to Lasell Seminary; Dexter H. Marsh, Florence C. Adams and Allard M. Graves to Bryant and Stratton.

The Semester is edited by Kenneth G. Crabtree of Hancock. The business manager is Joseph V. Tracy of Brighton, Mass.

Rev. Thomas Pearce of Glenarm, Md., who has been spending a brief vacation in Hebron, has returned to his home.

Thursday, September 23, a pleasant surprise party was given to Mrs. H. T. Glover in honor of her birthday. The party was gotten up by Mr. Glover and sons, Howard and Stanley, and daughter, Frances, and was a complete surprise to Mrs. Glover. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marshall of Marlborough, Mass., Mrs. Lizzie Josslyn and son, Lear of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Glover, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Melcher, Mrs. Carrie Cantello, Annie Glover and Agnes Bearce. Games were played and enjoyed by all. Ice-cream, fancy crackers, and candy were served.

Frances Glover goes to New York to pursue a course at Columbia University.

The big Hebron Academy foot ball team had little difficulty defeating Colby second in the opening game of the season at the Hebron grounds here, 32 to 0. The collegians were completely outclassed by the locals and were unable to stop the heavy charges of the big Green backfield, Jordan, the Hebron captain, being a rard man for them to stop, he making four touchdowns.

BUCKFIELD.

Was This Oxford Co. Man a Patriot?

The late Ex-Governor John D. Long was an Honorary Vice-President of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He was three times elected Governor of the state. He was Secretary of the Navy under President McKinley. Few men have now a larger place in the hearts of those associated with them as fellow-citizens, neighbors and friends, than Governor Long. His character was stainless, his intellectual power frankly recognized. The active friend of every cause that sought the common good, the trusted adviser of many private interests, his death will be mourned by a score of organizations for good and by a wide circle of men and women who had learned to look to him for counsel.

In the matter of patriotism he would hardly measure up to the demands of certain of our much-talking politicians. From the last letter he wrote the Boston Herald, upon "Moderation in War Equipment," we quote the following:

"We must not let the European situation make us panic-stricken. So far from its operation as a stimulus or warning to us immediately to abnormally increase our forces and armament, the argument, to my mind, rather runs the other way. All the nations whose antagonism would be threatening to us, in case any such antagonism should arise, will come out of the present convulsion exhausted and bankrupt and with a pretty keen appreciation that years of peace are vital to their recuperation.

"Will it not be enough, not of course abandoning our present rate of military preparation, to simply keep it without getting into a panic?

"Of course, it is true, as claimed, that if any chance of a war with a better prepared nation should arise, our comparatively modest but by no means inefficient preparation might not permit to resort off-hand to the arbitrament of arms. But, after all, would that really be a sorrow, and might it not lead to some other means of adjustment that would be less costly and bloody? If memory is correct, there is a prayer which contains the words, 'Lead us not into temtation.' "

The corn shop has been doing a good bit of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Bates of Boston have been with Mrs. Bates' sister, Mrs. F. W. Record, for a visit.

Warren Camp, No. 79, Sons of Veterons, had a class muster, at which time thirteen were taken into the camp. The work was done in an impressive manner by members of A. C. Pray Camp of Auburn, who were guests of the local camp. Division Commander A. P. Ayer was present, and remarks were made by him and other guests, and by members of this camp and local G. A. R. men. A program consisting of readings by Mrs. Withington and Miss Teague, vocal solo by Mrs. S. W. Purington, piano duet by Mr. and Mrs. Purinton, vocal solo by Barbara Ricker, banjo selections by Al Barrows, and martial music by "Billy and Fon," was followed by a banquet and everybody had a good time.

EAST SUMNER.

L. B. Heald, formerly of Co. C, 20th Maine Infantry, has gone to the National Encampment, G. A. R. at Washington, D. C.

Corn packing closed at the Minot Packing Co's. shops at East Sumner, last week. Only about 150,000 cans were put up here in one season. This has been an unusually hard season for packers as well as farmers. With a light hay crop, very few salable apples, potatoes rotting badly and few available farm products to be spared it will certainly be an "off year" for the farmers generally in the community.

Muriel Palmer is in charge of the school at East Sumner.

Mrs. Phila Bosworth is visiting her grandson, Clyde Ellingwood in Hebron.

Rev L. M. Robinson has returned to his duties in Philadelphia after spending his yearly vacation at and near the ancestral home near East Sumner.

Rev. Mr. Fisher of the Christian church organized a young people's Christian Endeavor Society, Tuesday.—

M. A. LeBaron and Mrs. Kate Williams have gone to Haverhill, Mass., on a visit.

SWEDEN.

The farmers in this vicinity have delivered their sweet corn to the corn shop, rather a slim crop. The farmers now are digging their potatoes, they say a small turn out and badly rotted.

Lizzie Knight has been very sick. She has a trained nurse.

Our school has been in session two weeks', taught by Annie Oberg. We hear we are having a good term of school.

Earl Bell of Fryeburg came to Sweden a short time ago and hauled 75 bushels of sweet corn with his span of horses, for Calvin G. Briggs. It was a heavy load, but when Earl spoke to his horses which was very pleasant, "Come boys," the load moved. He is a splendid teamster and takes extra care of his horses.

C. G. Briggs, William E. Gordon and sister, also Josie Bryan of this place, worked at Fryeburg corn shop this season.

She went to the Norway fair with her father on Wednesday, the second day, but when night came she was not to be found on the grounds. Finally it was learned that an acquaintance had seen her at the South Paris railroad station, apparently awaiting the next train. She was found to be in Gorham, N. H. Her father and deputy sheriff, Frank L. Fogg, going there for her on Friday last.

OLD AND NEW WAY TO TREAT CATARRH

Breathing a Germ Killing Air Endorsed By Actual Results.

The discovery of Hyomei has wrought a wonderful change in the treatment of catarrh.

Prior to three years ago the medicines ordinarily employed in the cure of this disease were drugs, sprays, lotions, etc. In some instances they benefited, but the improvement was not lasting.

With Hyomei you take into the air passages of your throat and head a balsamic air that goes into the minutest cells, and should effectually kill all germs and microbes of catarrh. Its purpose is to enter the blood with the oxygen killing the germs in the blood, and restore health to the whole system. Many astonishing testimonials have been received from those who have been helped by Hyomei.

A complete outfit is inexpensive and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks' treatment.

Perhaps the strongest evidence that can be given to the doubters, is the fact that Noyes Drug Co. has so much faith in Hyomei that they sell every package under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not relieve. 40-41

VETERAN IN SERVICE.

Major Henry A. Shorey of Bridgton Has Been Newspaper Publisher for Almost 50 Years.

Major Henry A. Shorey of Bridgton, who was in Bangor, Thursday, to attend the 31st annual reunion of the Fifteenth Maine Regimental association, is probably the oldest newspaper man in the Pine Tree State. This is his 46th year on the Bridgton News, a fine old weekly of which he is editor and publisher, and before going to Bridgton he served four years as publisher of papers (daily and weekly) in Bath. So he is now in his 50th year as a Maine journalist, and to say that he is respected and esteemed by his younger fellow workers is a mild way to put it.

Major Shorey knows every branch of the work in a newspaper office, from typesetting to the vigorous, clear cut editorials that command the attention and influence the opinions of the readers of this paper. He is a man of companionable ways, as newspaper men are apt to be, and loves to be out among men.

The latter quality is shown by his behavior among his fellow G. A. R. men of the Fifteenth Maine Regimental association, which he practically founded 31 years ago. He has attended every reunion during the years that the association has been organized and has been secretary during all that time. Presidents and other officers have come and gone but Major Shorey has remained in office as secretary. He has also written the history of the regiment, which is a splendid work.

Last year he was presented with a handsome gold headed ebony cane in observance of his golden jubilee wedding by several members of the regimental association and it is one of his proudest possessions. It was presented in appreciation of his untiring zeal and preservance in making the annual reunions worth while. —Bangor Commercial.

About this time Mother is persuaded that the boys can't be expected to do any work about the house, so they have to study half an hour after school.

He—I hear that Maggie Oldon is engaged at last.

She—Why, she must be thirty if she's a day. Who's the happy man?

Her father, I should say.

Mule Foot Hog is Cholera Immune.

The mule foot hog has been in existence hundreds of years, although in this country it is little known. It has great muscular power and vitality which renders it less liable to accident and disease than any other breed. The sows are unsurpassed for prolificacy and are kind mothers and good sucklers. The pigs are strong, active and vigorous at birth and consequently are not subject to mishaps so common to the very young pig.

The Mule Foot hog can be fattened for the market at any age, yet if desired, they can be fed to gain any reasonable weight, from 600 pounds to in some cases, 1,000 pounds. Their flesh is of the highest quality, containing a larger proportion of finely marbled lean and fat than in any other breed. It will dress heavier than any other breed of hog of the same weight, as the intestines of the Mule Foot hog are smaller than in other breeds. The power of the boar is great in transmitting the valuable qualities of the breed to his progeny when crossed with others. In fact, the fine qualities of the Mule Foot hog are too many to mention in this article.

Selfishness and Self-Control

Divine love "shall cover the multitude of sins." Genuine love in the heart will seek to suppress dissensions, repair injuries, over-look mistakes, and pour oil on the rusting wheels of domestic machinery. Selfishness causes one to lose his self-control, and to treat harshly those who are bound by the closest ties. "The little foxes" are the ones that "spoil the vines." The sand grains of cold criticism often cause the wheels of domestic machinery to grate and jar, and finally to stop altogether.

Leave selfishness entirely out of the home.

Have You?

Have you ever considered it is an honor to be in charge of a horse, the finest dumb animal placed on this earth?

Have you ever considered how little pleasure your horse gets out of life?

Have you ever considered the patient manner in which he works for you?

Have you ever considered this good friend cannot tell you when he is sick, or his feet are sore, or the harness hurts, or how heavy your wagon is, even though empty?

Have you ever considered you are the one to see that your horse is treated right?

Ruth is Home Again.

"Oh dear, these pies!" cried Ruth's mother, as she was baking for company, shortly after Ruth returned from her vacation trip, "the juice has run out all over the crust and made them soggy! And I was so anxious to have them look nice as well as taste nice."

"Well, I'm sorry mother, that I cannot help you with these particular pies," sympathized Ruth, who had fallen into her old helpful ways, "but I can tell you how Aunt Marry prevents just this sort of thing. She takes two small pieces of marcaroni, and puts them through the top crust, and lets them run down through the filling. This allows the air to escape and keeps the crust dry and flaky."

"Oh Ruth, why didn't you come down here an hour earlier?" almost wailed her mother as she gazed ruefully at her pies.

Too Late Now.

With an air of determination, the woman came into the photographer's studio.

"Good morning, madame!" said the proprietor. "What can I do—"

"I called to tell you that those photographs you took of my husband are most unsatisfactory!" snapped the woman. "Why he looks just like an ape!"

That touched the professional pride of the camera man.

"Well madame," he replied coldly "you should have thought of that before you married him."

QUALITY IN BUTTER.

Conservative estimates class only about 10 per cent. of the butter produced today as fancy table butter, while the other 90 per cent. ranges from medium to very poor in quality. A gradual tendency toward this condition has been noticed since the advent of the hand separator, but it is only in the more recent years that its serious aspect has become evident Before the hand separator came into use it was customary to take the whole milk to the creamery daily in a fresh condition. But since creamery patrons have been enabled to separate their cream at home they are inclined to hold it too long, so that it often reaches the creamery in a fermented and decomposed state. Close students of dairying are considerably alarmed over present-day conditions and feel that all those interested in dairying, whether as producers, manufacturers, or merchants, should cooperate fully and unselfishly to remedy conditions that are causing poor quality.

The butter makers of to-day, as a whole, are much more capable of manufacturing first-class butter than were those of 10 or 15 years ago. Modern methods and machinery and the results of years of experience and investigation have made it possible to manufacture good butter, provided a good quality of cream is available. It is, however, impossible for the best of butter makers to make a sweet wholesome product from poor cream. Old, unclean cream not only ferments but often decomposes. And yet creamery butter makers are criticized because they have not been able to make old and unclean cream into butter that will pass as extra quality in the market.

Much of the responsibility for the poor quality of butter to-day rests on the producer of cream. He alone is responsible for the quality of cream that furnished the butter maker. Strong competition among the creameries, rendering the creameryman fearful of criticizing patrons' product, has been the cause of much of the poor cream of today, but the creamery patron is confronted with the fact that in the future he will be the loser if he continues to dispose of poor cream through the creamery. The butter markets—the basis of the creamery industy—are becoming unsettled, because of the influx of so much poor butter, and the farmer need not be surprised if he is forced to receive a lower price, particularly for his low grade butter fat, than he has during more recent years.

All the conditions governing the quality of cream are under the control of the producer. Very little effort is required to improve ordinary conditions, so that a cream of the best quality may be produced at all times. It will soon become evident to the dairyman that, from a financial point of view, the little effort he exerts in producing a good cream is very profitable. Below will be found some directions that will aid materially in assisting the patron to improve the quality of cream he is delivering to the creamery.

Factors Influencing the Quality of Cream

(1) A clean well-flavored milk is a prime requisite of a good cream. To produce this kind of cream the following conditions are necessary:

(a) Clean, well-ventilated barn.
(b) Clean, healthy cows.
(c) Clean, well-drained barnyard.
(d) Clean, healthy milkers.
(e) Clean utensils, free from rust.

(2) The cream separator should be thoroughly washed and sterilized after each time it is used. Particles of milk or cream left in the separator act as a "starter" to hasten the souring of the cream.

(3) The richness of the cream is a very important factor; for the best results cream should contain from 30 to 33 per cent. of butter fat. Thin cream sours much more quickly than thick cream; hence thick cream can be kept sweet with less difficulty than thin cream. There is also less bulk to deliver to the creamery, more skimmed milk for feeding purposes, and the cream is in better form for the butter maker to handle.

(4) The temperature of the cream for holding should be 50 degrees F., or lower if possible. Cream sours very readily at temperatures above 60 degrees F.; hence it should be held at a temperature below that. When practicable, creamery patrons should have an ice supply to assist them in this espect.

(5) The mixing of warm, fresh cream is never advisable, as the whole mass is warmed thereby, and souring will follow more quickly. Always cool the newly separated cream before adding it to the cream on hand.

(6) If the cream is thoroughly stirred each time newly separated cream is added to that on hand, no lumps will form. The formation of lumps prevents proper sampling of cream for testing, and the patron is the loser thereby. Stirring also tends to keep the cream at an even temperature throughout, thus preventing parts of it from fermenting.

(7) The atmosphere surrounding the cream should be free from any undesirable odors; hence the cream should be kept in a clean, well-ventilated place in order that odors may not be taken up by it.

(8) The protection of cream cans during hot weather is very important. During delivery in the summer the cans should be protected from the sun by covering with blankets in order that the temperature of the cream may not be raised more than is necessary.

(9) The intervals between deliveries of cream depend upon the season of the year. It should be dilivered at least twice a week in the winter and three times in the summer.

How Not to Advertise.

A brother publisher speaking at a recent newspaper men's convention, gave this illustration of "How Not to Advertise."

He said that after much effort he once received a small advertising contract from a man in the repair business. This man made a specialty of repairing lawn mowers and sharpening skates in the respective seasons for these articles. In the summer he would include in his space the notice, "Lawn mowers sharpened." He would then forget all about the ad and let it stand unchanged until the grass had long been snow covered.

He would finally note that this looked queer and would substitute "Skates sharpened" for the lawn mowers. This also he would forget and would leave it there untill July, when the boys went in swimming in the warm water and so on. The man complained that the public was not much interested in his advertising. No wonder.

This incident is not so very exceptional and it illustrates how little pains many advertisers take to interest the public in their inducements.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

CHILDREN'S EYES AND GLASSES.

The eye is the organ that gives us the sense of sight, and makes it possible for us to enjoy the beautiful. Without it man is placed at a great disadvantage; and yet many men who would leave no stone unturned to save the eyes of a horse, will let their children go through childhood or possibly through life, with diseased or deformed eyes and do little or nothing for them. They could barter the horse for more dollars if the eyes were perfect, but they can not see far enough into the future, to realize that the child would have a greater earning power when grown if his or her eyes were perfect, or as near perfect as possible.

Children should not be allowed to enter school before six years of age, nor should the child be allowed to look much

CHILDREN'S EYES AND GLASSES.

The eye is the organ that gives us the sense of sight, and makes it possible for us to enjoy the beautiful. Without it man is placed at a great disadvantage; and yet many men who would leave no stone unturned to save the eyes of a horse, will let their children go through childhood or possibly through life, with diseased or deformed eyes and do little or nothing for them. They could barter the horse for more dollars if the eyes were perfect, but they can not see far enough into the future, to realize that the child would have a greater earning power when grown if his or her eyes were perfect, or as near perfect as possible.

Children should not be allowed to enter school before six years of age, nor should the child be allowed to look much at pictures, blocks, or anything requiring close vision for long at a time, as fusion of the vision does not take place until about the age of six, and for that reason children of four or five should not be sent to kindergarten, as close application of the eyes at this age causes more near sighted people than any other factor. Children are apt to form the habit of holding their books close to the eyes while studying; this causes a strain of the muscles of the eyes both within and on the outside of the eyeball, which is another cause for near sightedness and is a cause of cross-eyes.

We often have stigmatism in children, and, in order to see, they must hold the book close and squint the eyelids; another cause for coss-eyes. We occasionally see a child that is exceedingly far-sighted, and who to see properly, requires a lens even stronger than does the average person of sixty years of age.

Poor vision often accounts for the nervous condition, so often found in children, headaches and so-called growing pains. Errors in vision very frequently cause cross-eyes and if a child begins to show symptoms of cross-eyes, no matter how young, the eyes should be properly tested, and if necessary treated, as such conditions usually increase, and after they have reached the stage where one eye only is used, the other eye loses its vision to a greater or less degree.

If a child needs glasses they should be worn, but cheap stores and peddlers should be avoided. Reputable eye specialists should be consulted, for there are many children and young persons wearing glasses today who do not need them and many are wearing incorrect and injurious glasses.

Safety First in Ethics.

Is there nothing to be said about Safety First in realms other than the material? The individual who is careful and who avoids an accident ministers to his own good; if he carries life insurance and lives a year longer through failure to be reckless, he lowers the cost of insurance to every policy holder in his company; if he spares a public service corporation the necessity of settling with his executors, he increases the fund available of betterments or for dividends. This is all very much of the earth, earthy, and of finance, financial.

How about the man who is tempted to take the first glass? Safety First would stay his hand and close his lips forever to the drug that steals men's brains and that leaves that empty shell to crumble into a forgotten grave. Safety First would halt the pilfering finger of the defaulter, and stop the pen of the forger; it would close every red-light district, and discourage every attempt upon chastity and character; it would even end mad murder, and it might set thieves to seeking honest employment.—Christian Herald.

WATER ON THE FARM.

Pure and Abundant Supply a Prime Necessity—Mechanical Systems That Add Greatly to the Comfort of the Farm Household.

No questions are of greater importance to the farm family than the farm's water supply and the disposal of its sewerage. The prospective builder should make certain that these problems are solved before he does anything else, for they lie at the foundation of the entire household's health and comfort.

Purity and abundance are the two essen tials of water supply. Ordinarily, it has been calculated, each person on a farm will require 30 gallons a day, each horse from 10 to 13, each cow from 10 to 14, each hog from 1 to 3, and each sheep 1 gallon. If greater quantities are obtainable, so much the better.

Wells and springs are the usual sources of farm water. Both may be contaminated and the vicinity should, therefore, be inspected for possible sources of pollution. In some cases typhoid epidemics have been traced to springs which have become polluted throught fissures in the rock strata. Contamination may also reach well water through uncemented joints in the masonry, and for this reason it is always well to cement the joints for a considerable distance from the top. Surface contamination can be guarded against by the erection of a suitable concrete curb.

Once an abundance of pure water has been secured there is no single improvement which will add so much to the comfort of the household as some mechanical system of making it readily available. Where the supply is obtained at an elevation above the house the matter is comparatively simple. A tank or reservoir can be built and pipes run down from it, through which the water will flow by gravity and from which it can be drawn at will. In the majority of cases, however, before the force of gravity can be utilized it will be necessary to pump the water into an elevated tank. Unless this is in the house itself it is likely to freeze during severe weather and cause trouble.

Of the various methods of elevating water the windmill is perhaps the most satisfactory in the majority of cases. Its first cost may seem rather high, but after it is once erected it costs little to operate and maintain. On the other hand a large storage tank is a necessity as a precaution against long periods of calm weather when no wind blows and the mill stands idle. Water stored in this way becomes warm in summer and in the winter is often too cold to give to stock.

The storage difficulty does not exist when the gasoline engine is used, but the engine has its own drawbocks. Although it does not cost as much to install as a windmill, its operating cost is considerably greater, depreciation is more rapid, and expensive repairs are required more frequently. A 1 1-2 to 2 horsepower engine, however, such as is generally used for pumping water, may be used advantageously for many other purposes on the farm as well. Air-cooled engines are recommended when the pumping is intermittent, for they will not freeze in winter. When steady, uninterrupted work is expected, and there is, therefore, no danger of freezing, water-cooled engines are to be preferred.

The pressure or pneumatic tank has the great advantage of enabling modern bathrooms with good water pressure to be located in any part of the premises. The tank also can be placed in the cellar and thus protected from danger of freezing. Under this system, water is pumped in against air pressure of from 40 to 50 pounds a square inch. The chief objection is the initial cost, which is always high.

Under favorable circumstances a ram is an economical and convenient means of elevating water. The ram, however, is not what in mechanical language is known as "efficient," and, in consequence there must be a large surplus of water before it is a feasible device. Under this system the necessary power is derived from th downward flow of the water itself, which is so controlled that it enables the ram to elevate a certain portion of it into a storage tank. Much is wasted in the operation, however. Under certain circumstances this may be partially remedied by having the power furnished by the flow of other water.

On the ordinary farm, unless the sewerage is disposed of properly, there is danger that the water supply may be polluted. Where privies are in use, they should be located so that no drainage from them can reach the source of water supply, but they should also be readily accessible. The ultimate disposal of the sewerage may be accomplished in several ways.

A common but dangerous practise is to discharge it into a convenient stream. This may easily start a typhoid epidemic farther down the stream and should not be ensouraged. Surface irrigation over the land is better, but here again care must be taken to prevent the infection of articles of food, such as lettuce, which is eaten raw. More satisfactory results are usually obtained from cesspools, and the "leaching cesspool," in which the sewerage percolates gradually through porous material, has often proved successful. Such a cesspool may, however, be extremely dangerous if located in the path of ground water flowing toward the well. Septic tanks also have a number of important advantages, but it is usually desirable to use filters in connection with them. Subsurface irrigation is also common in connection with a septic tank.

Red Cross Christmas Seals.

Two hundred million Red Cross Christmas Seals are now being printed and distributed by the American Red Cross and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, according to a statement issued by the latter organization. The proceeds from the sale of these seals will go for the fight against tuberculosis in the communities where the seals are sold.

The organization of the Red Cross Seal sale this year will take in every state and territory of the United States, including Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Canal Zone. By December 1st, over 500,000 workers, men, women and children will be engaged in the campaign.

The sale in 1914 broke all previous records, totaling over 55,000,000 sales, an increase of 22 per cent. over 1913. After deducting all expenses, this left nearly $566,000 for tuberculosis work in this country. The money has been and is being expended by over 2,000 different agencies who benefited from the sale in amounts ranging from $100 or less to over $25,000. The American Red Cross announces that it will continue its previous successful policy of charging only 10 per cent. of the gross proceeds to state anti-tuberculosis associations, thereby encouraging local work.

FIVE PER CENT. OF ROAD MONEY RAISED.

The Public Utilities Commission Write

The Public Utilities Commission asks each newspaper in this state to call public attention to Chapter 177 of the Public laws of 1915. That chapter provides in substance that each city, town or plantation there shall be set aside five per cent. of the money raised for ways and bridges, such five per cent. to be used in cutting and removing trees, bushes and weeds which grow between the wrought part of the highway and the road limit. It is further provided that such work shall be done before the first day of October in each year, and that after it is once done the owner of the land shall keep trees, bushes and weeds cut down.

The Commission realize that the Public Utilities Commission may not have authority to in any way indicate where such obstructions shall first be removed, but, in view of the fact that during this particular year far too many fatal accidents have occurred upon railroad crossings, they urge upon selectmen to commence the expenditure of such money at places where steam or electric railroad cross highways at grade, in order that travelers upon the highways and engineers and motormen upon the railrways may be given as full opportunity as possible each to see the other in time to avoid accidents.

There are many crossings which are now entirely obscured from the view of an approaching traveler, and which, if these trees and bushes were cut away, would be visible and recognizable.

If a traveler is unable to see that a crossing exists he will not exercise the same degree of care he would if he could readily determine that he was approaching a crossing. Oftentimes the sign erected by a railroad is gradually obscured by growing trees and bushes. In at least two instances accidents have occurred, resulting in the loss of several human lives, which need not have been sacrificed if the trees and bushes along the highways had not existed.

The commission also ask the railroads to co-operate with the electmen in every way in removing from their own rights-of-way at crossings, all things that obstruct the view of the individual operating the train or car.

The railroads and the public cannot immediately discontinue the many hundreds of grade crossings which exist in this state. These crossings can, however, be made safer by complying with the above suggestion and it is felt to be a duty to give the matter the widest publicity possible, in order that each citizen may feel it is his personal concern to see that the selectmen of his town not only comply with this suggestion, but are backed up by public sentiment in such compliance.

New State Sanatoria.

Under the new law and policy for Maine adopted by the last Legislature, by October 15, Maine will have two sanatoriums operated under State control. The two institutions are already well known as Hebron and Fairfield. In pursuance of a definite plan Hebron is to be known as the Western Maine Sanatorium, and Fairfield as the Central Maine Sanatorium. For the present at least the Central Maine Sanatorium will be the Receiving Sanatorium.

The State has made the maximum charge Five (5) Dollars per patient per week. The trustees believe, each one receiving treatment at any of the State Sanatoria should strive, or be required, to pay the maximum rate if possible. Doctors sending patients to these institutions for treatment are asked to bear this in mind, and to impress upon their patients the fact that every one who refuses or neglects (even at sacrifice) to pay as near the full rate of $5.00 as possible is selfishly sapping the resources of the State and really robbing others of the right to the generous care they deserve.

The Maine Anti-Tuberculosis Association rejoices in the passage of this bill which commits the State to this (for Maine, new) highly desirable policy of State Tubeculosis Sanatoria. The Executive Secretary has seen two of the Trustees and visited the Central Maine Sanatorium under the new regime. That institution is filled almost to the limit. Built to accomodate 32 it now has 44 with several applicants on the waiting list. The patients, despite their affliction constitute a "happy family." One patient told the Secretary—"Our doctor and the nurses are so good to us and so cheery we can't help being happy and smiling." And that was on September 21st, with clouds and the "line storm" in full evidence. The State Association will still continue its educational campaign of prevention, and in this will work in harmony with and is promised the hearty co-operation of the Trustees of State Sanatoria.

By October 1, it is planned to have an embryonic preventia in operation at the Central Maine Sanatorium in Fairfield. This will be a school for tuberculous children, starting with those already at the institution. It is hoped this movement thus modestly inaugurated will soon appeal to those communities at least where the educational campaign is already organized, and that it will not be many years before all our cities and larger towns will have one such school as a regular part of the local school system.

The Meaning of Beauty.

To have the manners of the well-bred woman, to move about with grace and dignity, to know poise, character, honesty and deep sympathy, these are the finer lines of beautifying. Who cares a cent for the dolly woman who is beautiful to look at and who hasn't sense enough to draw her breath? Such women are not after the right idea, and true beauty will never place its golden halo on their heads.

Personal magnetism makes women beautiful and what is that but the free workings of a genuinely lovely spirit? Perfume the inside of your head with tender thoughts, keep your body strong, well and clean, make up your mind to learn everything you can, and if you do not look beautiful you will be so—and that will suffice.

A maple which grows 70 feet high, whose leaves turn a golden yellow in autumn, is one of the ornamental trees introduced from China of which something may be expected. A chinese elm particularly adapted for dry sections for windbreak purposes has proven very satisfactory and will be more generally introduced. A pine tree and a Chinese butternut also have grown well here. It is hoped that these all may prove as ornamental and useful as the gingko tree, (also known as the maiden-hair fern tree), which has grown so well along a number of the streets of our Capital.

MAKING OR BREAKING A TOWN.

It is easy enough to kill off a town, but how are we to rejuvenate a community that has been literally choked to death by the very people who should be its best friends and protectors—its own people?

This community is by no means dead, but it has had some solar plexus blows from people who should have been pushing instead of shoving.

It has been slowly choked and strangled by those who have injured themselves by their acts quite as much as they have injured the community.

It has been done by the inveterate patronizer of the mail order man and the big city merchant.

Let us suppose two pictures, and the story will have been told so plainly and so graphically as to be readily understood by any person of any degree of intelligence whatever.

Picture One.

This is a thriving country town community.

It has modern improvements, many stores well stocked with goods that are sold at close margins of profit, is clean, sanitary, and attractive in many ways.

Business is good, money plentiful and in constant circulation, society is active, and life is more than worth living.

Farmers find a ready market for their products, and those that are not consumed locally are purchased by shippers at the highest market prices.

The town has a good name abroad, new people are constantly moving in, real estate is on the move, farm values are high and the demand for them is heavy.

It is a successful town, but it is only because the people of the community trade with their home merchants and are loyal to home institutions and home people.

The community produces more than it consumes, and since the people trade at home the profits and surplus are naturally kept at home, with the result that the financial condition of the community becomes better day by day.

This is what loyalty to home institutions does for you and yours.

Picture Two.

This is known as a mail order town and community, and it looks it.

There was a time when this was a prosperous community of people, with many stores well stocked and business generally on the boom.

Then the mail order man came along with his handsome catalogues and his alluring advertisements of "something for nearly nothing" which did not always pan out as expected, and many of the people fell for his stunt.

And each year they fell a little oftener and a little harder, and the home merchants sold less goods and had to reduce their stocks, and some of them became town just naturally hit the slippery place on the toboggan and slid down to the bottom and has stuck there ever since.

Yes, it is just a mail order town, and looks it.

Pride is gone, business men are apathetic, trade is dull, money scarce and hard to get, social life is dead, real estate is deader, and farm values have shrunk until they are the deadest of all.

Many farms are for sale, but there are no buyers. Nobody wants to live or invest in a dead community.

Young people growing up get tired of living in a cemetery and move on to other and more progressive communities, or to the big cities.

Older ones would like to go, too, but they connot sell their property, and of course there is nothing left for them to do but stick around and stagnate with the rest of the victims of the mail order man.

This is what patronizing the mail order man and neglecting the home merchants and home institutions does for you and yours.

Moral: The community that patronize home institutions will live and prosper. The one that clings to the mail order man more often faces certain commercial disintegration, stagnation and death.

Antidote: Resolve today that you will never again deal yourself and your community a body blow by sending your money away to the mail order man. Stick to home and home will stay by you, and your combined energies will bring victory from defeat and prosperity from disaster.

It is suggested that for your fall and winter buying you first call upon your home merchants and see if they can not supply you with what you want as acceptably as any other man or set of men anywhere. They can do it and will do it.

You will never make fun of the peculiarities or idiosyncrasies of others.

You will never under any circumstances cause pain, if you can help it.

You will not think that "good intentions" compensate for rude or gruff manners.

You will not gulp your soup so audibly that you can be heard across the room, nor sup up the sauce in your plate with bits of bread.

You will not have two sets of manners, one for "company" and one for "home use."

You will never remind a cripple of his deformity, or probe the sore spots of a sensitive soul.

You will let a refined manner and superior intelligence show that you have traveled, instead of constantly talking of the different countries you have visited.

You will not remark, while a guest, that you do not like the food which has been served to you.

You will not atract atention by either your loud talk or laughter, or show your egotism by trying to absorb conversation.—Success.

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

They talk about a woman's sphere
As though it had a limit.
There's not a place in earth or heaven,
There's not a task to mankind given,
There's not a blessing or a woe,
There's not a whisper, yes or no,
There's not a life or death or birth
That has a feather's weight of worth
Without a woman in it.

The new boarder of the Hill Top Farm (Frost Hill), Minnie Wardsworth Frost is growing finely and hopes to stay at this healthful resort for many years. * * * This is the little daughter of Jennie and Irving Frost. She now lives in Auburn and her parents are living there also.

The medical fraternity vouch over their signature to the purety of Norway Lake water. The board of health, Bial F. Bradbury M. D., F. N. Barker M. D. and E. H. Brown give it full endorsement. It says: Only six cases of typhoid fever in town this season. Three of these were imported and the other three were in families where well water was used—not one case where lake water was used. Here are the signers—not one now living: A. N. French M. D.; O. N. Bradbury M. D.; E. H. Cook M. D. and C. L. Pike M. D. * * * Typhoid fever has been greatly reduced by the abandonment of wells and the using of lake water. There is no oubt of it. Statistics for 25 years plainly show this.

Wayside Sketches and Notes.

We come from Portland the other evening over the Grand Trunk and Conductor D. F. Bowker was in charge of the train. There were few passengers and the conductor had time to talk with us.

Naturally the subject discussed was railroading and getting the night express through to Montreal. Traffic has been light all summer, but it was exceptionally so that night. War, poverty and automobiles might have been the cause.

"Vine" Bowker as he is known when he signs up at stations has been "on the road" 35 years and has worked up from spare freight brakeman to run the best trains over the eastern division of the Grand Trunk System. Naturally he feels proud of the advancement and it is proper he should.

He leaves Portland at night and arrives in the big Canadian City the following morning, 300 miles, leaving there that evening and if all goes well he gets into Portland at 7:30 a. m. This is the night run. A lay off of a day follows and the journey is repeated for a month and then comes his turn to take the opposite "day run." The distance is the same whether traveled by night or day, some over six thousand miles per month or a distance equal to round the world every 42 days. What do you think of that!

Delphinus F. Bowker, born in Paris, Me., and a son of the late Whitmore W. Bowker does this and has been doing it for years. He is a brother of Chas. W. Bowker, the perpetual, Paris selectman, chief engineer, F. D., and Water company manager of South Paris. He is a good fellow, both are and they stick to their jobs too.

Conductor Bowker told us he was going to Washington, D. C., on a week's vacation coming the 26th and if we mistake not is to be accompanied by his wife. His wife lives in Portland, where he has voting residence.

Mr. Bowker, in the near future, contemplates visiting his South Paris friends and has agreed to call and look over a county printing office. We hope he will not take offense over what we have said about him.

Arthur Forbes and the Mrs. of South Paris got on the train at Mechanic Falls. They had a two hour wait here, coming home from the Canton Fair and interested themselves as uninvited lookers-on at a big party gathering on a nearby hill. A Miss or Mrs. Earle was entertaining.

They report the fair as about usual with weather conditions not up to the standard.

Mrs. Forbes comes from over Canton way and she takes Arthur along with her to the fair once a year and shows him to her friends. He writes up a good story of what he sees for his paper and it pleases the people even if there is a long spell of time to kill at the Falls in returning.

On this particular evening, we were accompanied by a iron pot with three legs on it. Many years ago one leg broke off and was mended by a blacksmith, who did a bungling job, but it is fool proof and water tight now. We have washed our hands and face in it, when a boy and this iron vessel set in aunt Dolly's wooden sink for that purpose.

It's more than 100 years old, yea, possibly a century and a half ago it did duty over the fire of Peter Robinson of Meredith Center, N. H. Peter served in the Revolutionary war and his daughter Dolly, maried John R. Tilton and this iron pot was a part of her outfit, when she set up in housekeeping 90 odd years ago. It had been in the Robinson family many years, prior to this.

Valuable! I guess it is. Our eyes and the eyes of two ladies, three seats back, hardly left it during the journey from the city.

While talking with the conductor I kept my hand in the bail for fear he'd snatch it from me and take it home to Portland for Mrs. Bowker.

On leaving the car at South Paris the two ladies, three seats back rose to go and I felt sure they intended robbery. I slyed it out under the protection of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Forbes, who are newspaper people and consequently honest and law abiding.

On the electric car, I felt safe as Louise Seavey and Ora Cook, Beals' Tavern waistresses were the only passengers and they were too young to care for such trumpery and they really made fun of me to such an extent, I paid their car fare.

I discovered the kettle or iron pot at number six hundred and some odd Congress street and it was presented to me by Mrs. Fred A. Crommett whom I once knew as Georgia Ham, when we attended the same country school and ran bare-footed in the highway. It was her grandmother's—good old soul—she was aunt Dolly to everybody in the neighborhood and she would spin and weave and attend births and funerals. I have worn clothes of her manufacture and felt proud of them.

You can believe, I felt relieved when I got the iron pot safe in the house that night. The Mrs. put it in the middle of the center table, turned on more light and began walking around the room admiring it.

Two days later I found it occupying a central position on the most conspicuous shelf in the cupboard surrounded by a "strawberry set of china" of a most antiquated pattern and Mrs. S intently gazing on it murmuring "is'nt it lovely."

Frank Horn, the Brownfield postmaster and his sister, Mrs. Belle Weeks of Springvale used this kettle for the same purpose, I have in the days of long ago, but they can't have it, even if it was their grandmarms, not unless they—— well they won't steal.

I have the iron pot with a bail on it. The one Ariminta once owned.

A large bell taken from an old locomotive has recently been installed on the roof of the vestibule, which will be rung every morning when the night watchman finds that there is to be a good sunrise, and it is guaranteed to arouse all slumberers. The bell is also rung just before the trains go down the mountain in the afternoon. It was rung for the first time at sunrise on September 17, when the guests were called to witness a beautiful and interesting view of daybreak among the mountain peaks.

Rich Cloth Upholstery

Like many high priced cars the 1916 Overland, Model 83, is upholstered in cloth.

This finely-woven, worsted material has many advantages that make it preferable to imitation or split-leather, such as is used on cars of similar price.

Cloth is more comfortable—cooler in summer and warmer in winter—and it does not wear slippery.

There is no surface coloring matter to come off and mar light clothing. It makes slip-covers unnecessary.

The rich appearance of this dark grey striped cloth is set off to advantage by black leather trimming, used around the tops of the seat backs, and around the edges of the doors.

And it retains its rich appearance indefinitely, for unlike leather it will not crack or peel. And being dyed in the wool it will not fade or change color.

A light brushing will remove dust from its smooth surface, and soap and water will take out grease or oil spots.

In wearing quality this Overland cloth has every advantage as an upholstering material. The under side is waterproofed by special process. It is the sort of upholstery you will want in your new automobile.

STOMACH MISERY QUICKLY VANISHES

Your money back if you want it is the way in which the Noyes Drug Co., the popular druggists are selling Mi-o-na, the great dyspepsia remedy.

This is an unusual plan, but Mi-o-na has so much merit and is so almost invariably successful in relieving all forms of indigestion that they run but little risk in selling under a guarantee of this kind.

Do not be miserable or make your friends miserable with your dyspepsia. Mi-o-na will help you. If it doesn't, tell the Noyes Drug Co. that you want your money back and they will cheerfully refund it.

A change for the better will be seen from the first few doses of Mi-o-na and its continued use will soon start you on the road to perfect digestion and enjoyment of food.

Mi-o-na has been so uniformly successful that every box is sold under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not relieve. What fairer proposition could be made?

The Noyes Drug Co. give their personal guarantee of "money back if you want it" with every box of Mi-o-na that they sell. A guarantee like this speaks volumes for the merit of the remedy. 40-41

The question is asked as to what has become of the man who used to say that when he got an automobile he would drive not more than 15 miles an hour. Well it is safe to say that by this time a good many of his neighbors are afraid to go to ride with him.

BRYANT'S POND

Pull for Woodstock.

These are the days when we who live within the limits of our good old town of Woodstock cannot help but feel glad that we are so situated. It is true that in many ways it has been rather a hard year. Our crops have not been all that we could wish and we have had to put our hands deep into our pockets to help pay for our new high school building, but this is for the present only and the future of our own little town never looked brighter.

We doubt if there is a single citizen of this town who did not feel a little pride in Woodstock on our Centennial Day. It was a celebration which was worthy of "Old Woodstock" and was made so from the fact that we all "pulled together" to make it so. From Curtis Hill to the Gore, from Bryant's Pond to Shagg Pond, from the Whitman District to the Perkins district we worked together to make the affair a success and we were rewarded by a celebration which would do honor to any town on it's 100th birthday.

Not only for our Centennial celebration but in every undertaking for the welfare of our town, when we have worked together, our efforts have been crowned with success.

Do we, as citizens of Woodstock, half begin to realize what our town might become were we to steadily pull together for everything that concerns the welfare of our town? Are we each and all doing everything in our power to make Woodstock a better, a larger, a more prosperous community? Let us think it over.

Our possibilities for improvement are unlimited. We have many resources to develop, if we will. We farmers, traders and others are all in the same boat, when we pull apart, the boat rocks, we make no progress. When we pull together the boat goes ahead and our town prospers.

We have learned to our sorrow how much we can lose by pulling apart, by quarreling among ourselves and kicking our own town. We have also learned that by working together we can accomplish things right here in our own little town, almost beyond our wildest dreams.

We have already accomplished much towards improving our town, but if we are to make steady progress, we must be awake to our possibilities.

We need an organization to work for the upbuilding of not only our village and business center, but for everything that concerns the interests of our whole town. An organization that can speak for and be representative of all of Woodstock. Just what form of organization we need remains to be solved, but it would seem that in our Village Improvement Society which has already accomplished so much, we have the nucleus of the broader organization.

Let us make it a truly town organization and broaden out its work. It could easily change its name and by-laws if it seemed desirable. While the main work would be in the village as it is now. Still there are many problems which concern us all, which such an organization could work out. Let us think it over. Sometime this fall or early winter we ought to hold a big get together meeting, just as they do in Norway every winter, and boom old Woodstock, for all its worth. And out of such a meeting, let us see if we cannot reorganize our V. I. S. or form a new organization, in which all citizens of Woodstock who want this good old town to grow and develope, may unite and help do the work that so needs to be done. It is up to us.

Some of Our Needs.

We need a hotel, the first and greatest need of all. We need a telephone central or some means of beter telephone service. We need good roads, leading from all sections of Woodstock to the business center.

We need to do all in our power to build up our summer business and encourage our summer guests to build in town. We need better school buildings and appliances in the rural districts. We need a lighting system for our village. We need a garage and some good industry to locate here.

We need to pull together and build up our town as a trade center. We need a good farmer for every unoccupied farm in town. We need a steam or electric road to Rumford.

We should have better fire protection and gradually extend our sidewalk system and while we are about it, we need a tunnel through Billings' hill, so that our neighbors over the hill may more easily reach town. While it will undoubtedly be many years before the last need can be fulfilled and the use of aeroplanes may eliminate the necessity, there is no question but what many of the others would be within our reach and must be secured if our town is to grow and prosper as it should.

Citizens of Woodstock, think it over. It is up to us.

Assist Your Stomach

To Get Rid of the Poisonous Gases and Fermenting Food.

A good long fast will do this sometimes. A trip to the mountains. Tramping. Roughing it. Yes, very good remedies.

But are you going to avail yourself of either one of these remedies. No? Then the next best thing is to try a bottle of Peruna. Take it according to directions. You will have a natural appetite. All gas and fermentation in the stomach will disappear.

Read what Mrs. Emma Bell, Box 204, Fort Pierce, Florida, says: "I was taken suddenly with swelling of the stomach and bowels, and great distress. Very painful. Three doctors gave me no relief. Could not eat anything. Everything soured. I was starving to death. I began taking Peruna and was soon strong enough to do work. After taking five bottles I can truthfully say I am well. I gained twenty pounds."

The Line Gale.

Old fashioned folks looked upon the storm of Sunday as the line gale, but the line gale has no existence in fact. For 40 years the United States weather bureau has been keeping accurate records of storms and gales and it finds that on the whole September is not a month of high winds. It is, instead, a month when the weather is usually mild. It is seldom that in September, we have a disturbance of the kind which tradition associates with the line gale. The records of the scientists thus disprove the tradition. The idea of the line gale must be abandoned along with the idea that the climate of New England is changing. We are coming to the day when many picturesque notions about the weather will be looked upon as curiosities handed down to us from an age when superstition and guess work played a much larger share in fixing people's belief than they do in these practical and scientific days.

A band of gypsies of several large wagon loads passed through here Tuesday afternoon. They stopped in the square an hour and all skirmished around into every store, the women telling fortunes whereever they could and all buying food and eating it as they went, causing quite a good deal of curiosity on the part of our town people. They went on up High street, where it was said they camped for the night.
